ARIZONA.

PRESCOTT, Sept 3.—Reports from all the mining camps are very encouraging. Last night's Miner mining summary says although there is but little work in the mines that little pays as all other citizens can learn to their satisfaction by calling at any store and requesting to look at the gold dust on hand. We have in this way satisfied ourselves and want others to do the same. At the several places of business there are hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of gold and silver. The fact is confidence in the riches and permanency of the mines of Arizona on account of the mill failures was once quite shakey but it is now fully restored and we hazard nothing in advising all who can raise sufficient money to buy a few animals and provisions to go to the mountains and work quartz in arrastas, and we advise merchants and others who are deeply interested in the development of the Territory to assist all good men who wish to open the mines. The Indians are quiet and must remain so as long as Gen Crook is in command so there need be no fears of danger from them. Flour and meat are down to fair prices. This section, like other sections of Arizona is almost self sustaining. Wages are not high, the climate is mild and healthy, timber is abundant, feed for animals is ditto, and we really lack nothing to send the territory up in a scale of prosperity but population a little better mail facilities and a railroad all of which will soon come

DECISION IN U S DISTRICT COURT BY JUDGE DEADY

U S District Court—District of Oregon

In re C B Comstock & Co—Motion to strike out objections to proof of debt

The provision of the act of June 22, 1874 amendatory of the bankrupt act requiring one fourth in number and one-third in amount of the creditors to join in a petition for an adjudication of bankruptcy in cases commenced prior to its passage and since December 1 1873 does not apply to any of such cases in which there had been an adjudication prior to the date of said act.

A petition in bankruptcy is an action or suit and an adjudication of bankruptcy thereon is a final judgment, which judgment is beyond the power of Congress to annul or set aside

DEADY J —Thursday September 3 1874

On December 16 1873 a petition in bankruptcy was filed in this Court against C B Comstock & Co upon which they were adjudged bankrupts on January 9, 1874 which adjudication was affirmed in the Circuit Court on May 9 thereafter

On January 30 the Bank of British Columbia proved a debt against the estate of $4,620 28, to which the assignee on June 10, filed objections

On July 31 the Bank moved to strike the objections from the files, because the Court had no jurisdiction to proceed in the case since June 22 1874 for the reason that it appeared that less than one-fourth in number and one third in amount of the creditors had joined in the petition

Thereupon at the request of the parties, the Register certified the question to the Judge for decision with an opinion against the motion

§ 39 of the bankrupt act as amended by § 12 of the act of June 22d 1874 makes it necessary for at least one fourth of the creditors in number and one third in value to join in the petition to have their debtor adjudged a bankrupt and provides that this provision shall apply to all cases of compulsory or involuntary bankruptcy commenced since December 1 1873

The petition in this case was not brought by such a proportion of the creditors either in number or value

The case having been commenced since December 1 is within the mere letter of the act but I do not think it is within the intent or purpose of it

This has been so held by Hopkins, D J In re Raffauf 10 N B R 69 by Longyear D J In re Angell, Id 73, by Krekel, D J In re Rosenthal 1 Cent L J 364 by Withey D J In re Pickering Id 372 and by Dillon C J In re Obear and In re Thomas, Id 362

A petition to have a debtor adjudged a bankrupt is to all intents and purposes an action or suit. The direct and immediate object of the proceeding is to obtain the judgment of the court, that the debtor is a bankrupt. From the filing of the petition until the court pronounces upon this question the action is pending. But so soon as judgment is given either that the debtor is a bankrupt or not it is no longer pending. The action has passed into judgment—not interlocutory but final. True there may follow long and complicated proceedings in the Court concerning the settlement and distribution of the bankrupt's estate but these are only consequences or incidents of such final judgment. Upon an execution to enforce an ordinary judgment in an action at law to recover money or specific property, there may be proceedings against third persons for the purpose of subjecting money or property due from or held by such persons to the satisfaction of said judgment

A decree dissolving the marriage relation is a final one so far as the direct object of a suit for divorce is concerned although the Court may thereupon be authorized and proceed to make further decrees and orders and change and modify the same from time to time concerning the property of the parties and the custody and maintenance of their children

A decree admitting a will to probate is a final one so far as the validity of the will is concerned although the Court as a consequence of such decree may proceed to administer and distribute the estate of the testator

Admitting that the legislature can modify or change the remedy in a particular case, even after the commencement of proceedings such modification or change would only apply to pending cases. In the cases suggested there is no longer a remedy to be affected by the legislation. It is functus—merged or passed into judgment. The rights of all parties to the proceeding have thereby become determined and vested beyond the reach of legislative caprice or control

So in the case at bar. The petition to have Comstock & Co adjudged bankrupts was no longer pending when the amendment of 1874 took effect. It had served its purpose and the adjudication upon it had determined the status of the debtors and authorized the court to distribute their estate among their creditors.

Even if it were within the power of Congress to annul all the many adjudications in bankruptcy that were had throughout the country between December 1 1873 and June 22 1874 upon petitions filed since the former date the act would be such an unreasonable arbitrary and unjust one that no court would hold that Congress so intended unless the intention was expressed in the plainest and most explicit language. So long as the act was capable of any other construction it should be adopted in preference to one which would lead to such monstrous and extraordinary results. See In re Obear and In re Thomas supra

For these reasons I conclude that the act of 1874 requiring that in all cases of involuntary bankruptcy commenced since Dec 1 a certain proportion of the creditors should join in the petition was not intended to apply to the cases determined before its passage. As was said In re Raffauf supra — Its requirements are satisfied with an application of its provisions to existing cases before adjudication and such it seems to me is the obvious meaning of the amendment and also In re Angell supra. "The enactment in question is given full effect and in my opinion all the effect Congress intended it should have by applying and limiting it to cases still pending and undisposed of by adjudication

In re Joliet I & S Co 10 N B R 60 and In re Scammon Id 66 it was held that the act of 1874 applied to all cases commenced since December 1, and still pending or not adjudicated at the date of its passage and therefore that the petitions in such cases must be amended so as to show that the requisite number and value of creditors join in it before the court can give judgment. In the first case Blodgett D J said It is manifest then that from the time this becomes a law no person can be adjudged a bankrupt unless the requisite number of creditors join in the petition because it must be upon their petition * * Taking the whole scope of the act it seems to me that in all petitions where an adjudication has not already been passed the allegation must come from the petitioning creditors and it must be made to appear affirmatively that the requisite number do join in the petition and in the second one — the evident spirit and intent of the amendment is that all cases pending or commenced since December 1 shall conform to and proceed upon the requirements of the law in the same manner as new cases

Now although this precise question was not before the Court in these cases yet the plain import of the passages quoted is that when the cases had passed into judgment they are not pending and therefore not within the intention of the act

But if it were manifest that it was the intention of Congress that the act should apply to all cases commenced since December 1 whether they had passed into judgment or not it is equally plain that it is not within its power so to provide. The necessary effect of such an enactment in this case would be to annul and set aside the judgment, determining Comstock & Co to be bankrupts and to grant them a new trial. This would be the exercise of judicial power—a power which Congress does not possess. By the constitution (Art 3 § 1) it is provided The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish

In Wheeling Bridge case 18 How 431 Mr Justice Nelson says But it is urged that the act of Congress cannot have the effect and operation to annul the judgment of the court already rendered or the rights determined thereby in favor of the plaintiff. This as a general proposition is certainly not to be denied especially as it respects adjudication upon the private rights of parties. When they have passed into judgment the right becomes absolute and it is the duty of the court to enforce it. In the same case at page 440 Mr Justice McLean says The Congress and the court constitute co-ordinate branches of the government their duties are distinct and of a different character. The judicial power cannot legislate nor can the legislative power act judicially and at page 441 Mr Justice Catron says Congress cannot annul or vacate any decree of this Court. The assumption of such a power is without precedent and as a precedent for the future it is of dangerous example

Counsel for the motion has attempted to show how this act may be applied to this case without annulling the judgment by merely staying any further proceeding hereon as upon a [illegible] until the petition has been amended in conformity with it. But this implies that the amendment can be made where as the petitioner may not be able to get the requisite number of persons to join in the petition and in that event the judgment is practically annulled because no proceedings can be taken under it or in consequence of it. But if the amendment can be made the debtors must be allowed to controvert it or else it is a mere fiction which may be alleged as a matter of form to give the Court jurisdiction. If the amendment is controverted a trial must take place on this issue which may result in a judgment dismissing the petition, and in that case what becomes of the former judgment? In effect it is annulled from the time it is considered within the purview of the act requiring the amendment of the petition

That such is the effect of applying the act to this class of cases, it seems to me there can be no doubt. For instance on December 2 1873, the law of this State being that a party might bring an action against an absent debtor and attach his property within the State to satisfy any judgment which he might obtain therein upon the service of a summons by publication, suppose A commenced an action in that manner against B and obtained judgment before June 22 1874 when the Legislature changed the law and provided that service of a summons should not be made by publication except upon conditions and under circumstances materially different and in addition to those required by the old law and further that this provision should be retroactive and apply to all cases commenced since December 1 1873 can it be claimed that this act could be applied to the case of A v B without practically annulling and setting aside the judgment therein? Manifestly not

The only practical solution of the question is to hold that the act of 1874 only applies to pending cases—cases in which the action has not been brought to a termination—and that cases which have passed into judgment are not pending ones but res adjudicata and therefore beyond the domain of legislation

THIRD TERM

VIEWS OF VICE PRESIDENT WILSON—HE IS OPPOSED TO IT—AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW—THE POLITICAL ISSUES OF THE DAY

A representative of the New York Herald claims to have interviewed Vice President Wilson on Tuesday last during his stay in New York city, and after speaking of the healthy appearance of the distinguished statesman he says

VIEWS ON THE THIRD TERM.

After conversing on affairs of no public importance the topic gradually changed to that of politics. The question as to whether the President had any idea of a third term was naturally the one that should be first discussed and in this connection Mr Wilson was most frank and outspoken. He gave it as his most decided opinion that General Grant had not the smallest idea of running for the Presidency for a third term. Neither did he think that President Grant encouraged any such thought. Doubtless there are a great many officeholders and parties who were desirous of getting into public positions who would prefer to see the President remain at the head of affairs for another four years but on the other hand there is the large mass composed of the best men of the Republican party who would be entirely and utterly opposed to any such design. "In fact, said Mr Wilson I for one should vote against him for I think it has come to be understood and accepted by the American people that it would be both unwise and impolitic to allow any man to fill the office of President for more than two terms. So much so is this the case that it as it were forms

A TACIT CLAUSE OF THE CONSTITUTION

There has never yet been a President who was continued in office for more than eight years and I sincerely trust there never will be. There are I have not the slightest doubt many men from all parts of the Union who for their own selfish ends will endeavor to persuade General Grant to seek a renomination but I for one believe that the President will turn a deaf ear to all their arguments and positively decline to allow his name to be put before the convention. Of course General Grant is peculiar in some things especially in that he does not communicate his thoughts very freely upon what he intends doing, but I am informed on the very best authority outside of putting the direct question to him that he intends to have nothing whatever to do with trying to obtain another term of office but that he rather looks forward to the time when he will retire from his onerous position of chief executive officer of the United States. He however is undoubtedly very strong with the party but for all that I think were he to be renominated for as I have previously said the people would in my judgment rise up irrespective of party and vote against him. He would of course have the support of a large section of the Republicans but that would not be sufficiently strong to elect him. The people will protest in this way against the perpetuation of an office in one man for should the President be elected a third time there would be nothing to prevent his seeking a fourth and even a fifth which I take to be contrary to the provisions of the Constitution although not expressly set forth in so many words. There are other good men in the Republican party who are quite competent to fill the position and there is no condition of affairs now existing which requires that the present Executive shall be continued in office. As to President Grant being the only man that could be put forward likely to consolidate the party strength and insure a victory in the next campaign I am not of that way of thinking for there are I should say at the present time at least a dozen of the candidates who could be found who would command the respect and obtain the support of the great body of Republicans

HE WOULD BE BADLY BEATEN

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES

At the present moment however it is almost too soon to form an opinion as to who the selected standard bearer of our party will be. Speaker Blaine is I understand likely to be pressed for nomination. He is unquestionably well qualified to fill the Presidential chair and he would also inspire the confidence of all ranks. He has had a large public experience and has besides a good record. Mr Washburne our Minister to Paris is another candidate who, I think will be greatly talked of before the final action is taken. I think he would if chosen be a tower of strength and would poll an exceedingly large vote. He is I think as popular a man as can be found and justly so. His actions and services rendered during the late war in France have commended him most strongly to the gratitude and admiration of the American people. He has shown great ability and firmness of character under most trying circumstances which clearly indicate his fitness to occupy the highest office in the gift of the people and to fill the position with honor to himself and the nation. He has not been much talked of as yet but, as I have just said it is my opinion that long before the proper time comes he will be looked upon as the coming man. There are many others who are spoken of but I would just now prefer not to go into the discussion of the question more deeply than I have done

IS THERE DISAFFECTION IN THE RANKS?

As to whether a division or split is likely to occur in the ranks of the Republican party under certain contingencies Mr Wilson said I am not one who looks forward to any such majorities in the next campaign as we have hitherto obtained but I do not think there will be any falling out from the ranks to any extent. Of course there will always be some disappointed men in every party who become disaffected by reason of their wants not being supplied and others who fancy they have been ill used in some way or the other. It only requires however, a proper organization and honesty of purpose both as to promises and performances together with able and upright leadership to insure our pre[illegible] front. The last campaign was an extraordinary triumph but it was also for after such a victory the tendency was rather to laxity in keeping the party together. We must not hope for any such majority in the future. You see we have carried the Presidency now four times, and the House of Representatives for a still longer period and it is not in the natural order of things to be supposed that we shall always succeed. In the last struggle too there were a large number of people who voted for us in preference to Greeley belonging to the Democratic party and whose support we shall lose this time. We require to use all our strength for our antagonists are watchful and wary and although they have several times committed faults we must not expect them to perpetuate them. They are preparing to make a strong effort to achieve a victory in the coming struggle and we must if we hope to succeed be up and doing. I believe that it will be found that although there is now some talk of dissatisfaction in our ranks from the causes I have referred to yet when the time comes party ties and affiliations will be so strong as to insure all pulling together for the common good

THE PROSPECTS IN THE SOUTH

In some parts of the South there will doubtless be a hard tussle for victory. The Democrats are now inaugurating and carrying into effect as far as possible their ante bellum policy and as they have gained a dear experience by past events they will endeavor in every way there, and in fact all over the Union to make the strongest possible nominations in order to secure conquests on their side. This naturally will have the effect of making the Republicans watchful. By our acting in such a spirit of honest reform as is now needed to correct abuses that have crept in through unavoidable circumstances and by pursuing a liberal policy nominating the best possible men to be found for all offices we may I think still maintain our majority. We may lose in some places perhaps but in others, on the contrary we shall gain

HOLD OUT THE HAND OF RECONCILIATION

As to the influence of the Liberal Republican element during the coming time, I am not disposed to consider that it will be thrown in the scale adversely to us. I think it is our policy to endeavor to reconcile all the factions of our party. This can be done by pursuing a judicious course of action—making promises only where they will be kept and further by a reconstruction of the machinery upon which our whole system works. It is necessary however for all hands to work with a will and to remember that the campaign next year will be fought against antagonists who have been constantly perfecting their organization. This we need to do. I have always advocated the necessity of constant watching on our own side, but by reason of our supposed strength a certain degree of laxity has been allowed to obtain which should now be gotten rid of. All who have seceded in any way partially or wholly, should be constantly asked to return. The hand of fellowship should be continually held out to them in all faith and brotherly love.

THE SPECIE PAYMENT QUESTION

"On the matter of how the question which has for some time agitated the country—namely, a return to specie payment—will affect the elections this fall I am not quite prepared to say. It is a question which requires some study and by reason of my having been unable to give particular attention to public matters lately I should prefer to be understood as not advancing any decided opinion on such a subject. However as I take it I do not believe the elections will be much influenced by it either one way or the other. It seems to me there are three factions on either side or rather in both parties which will keep things pretty evenly balanced. There are those who clamor for an immediate resumption of specie payments or as they are termed others who want a gradual resumption during the lapse of years and a third party who want paper money continued indefinitely or for all time. Of course it is but natural to suppose that each of these three systems will have their advocates and supporters, according to the peculiar proclivities and modes of thinking in the different sections regions, or States, and only those who are in affiliation with the popular ideas on this subject will be received with favor when they are canvassing for votes. Supposing however from this cause losses should be sustained in one place, a gain will be scored as a set off in another. Thus the account will be balanced will be a different matter. That may perhaps bring about some complications but I must decline saying anything with regard to that for the present

In closing the conversation upon politics Mr Wilson said he hoped to see the Republican party still united in the next struggle and although for himself he had no political aspirations or ambition yet he should in the future as in the past ever strive to further its interests and strive to the utmost to bring about the nomination and subsequent election of good honest and upright men

A party by the name of McGetty, who has been swelling around Longmont Wyoming for the past indefinite number of months and has also cut no end of a dash in Denver as a Colonel Heath of the Black Horse Cavalry C S A has come to grief at last. He married an estimable widow lady of that place a short time ago. It now transpires that his real name is McGetty, that he had another wife in the States has been for a long time suspected which at last resulted in his being arrested on a charge of bigamy. At the preliminary examination several letters were read from and to his whilom wife which established his identity as one W H McGetty of Battle Creek Mich. and not Col W M Heath of Virginia. The name of Heath it seems, he stole from said wife that being the cognomen of her first husband. He is now in jail waiting for something to turn up

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 4, 1874.

A DEFEAT WITH A MORAL.

Luke P. Poland went to the Forty-second Congress with a majority of 7,000 and more. He was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress by about the same vote. His district was what is known as "reliably Republican." A census of Republican voters taken at the polls last Tuesday, shows that in 42 out of 80 towns Poland received 3,852, Dennison, 5,250, and Davenport (Dem.), 1,390. Where, oh where, are the 7,000 Republican freemen whom Luke erst carried in his breeches pocket?

It is the same old story. Poland had shoe-latchets, and "the howling pack" got after them. The newspapers did it. For Luke P. Poland, be it remembered, is the individual who engineered what is known as "the Press Gag Law" through Congress at the last session. There are many good things to be said of this unfortunate man. Up to the time that he entered General Butler's service (be it consciously or unconsciously) he had a reputation for singular purity and integrity. His conduct as Chairman of the Poland Committee, charged with the duty of investigating the Credit Mobilier iniquity was commended in strong language by the press of the country. He was generally regarded as one of the best men in Congress, and we still incline to the belief that he was. It may not be too much, even, to concede for charity's sake that he was conscientious in his wrong-doing. Just at the close of the last session he introduced and urged through a measure which was generally considered a direct and fierce blow at the press of the country. And when he was renominated he made before the Convention a harangue full of bitterness, in which he attempted to justify his dangerous act. It was apparent, all along, that if Poland was renominated he would imperil the Republican party in that district. But the managers put him forward against the earnest remonstrance of a large minority of the nominating Convention. The minority straightway placed a new candidate in the field. The morning dispatches inform us that he has been elected, beyond all doubt.

What shall be said of the wicked men who bolted the regular Republican ticket and voted for a "sorehead"? Wasn't it their plain duty to "effect reforms inside the party?" And wasn't it a sign of bad breeding in them to try to do it outside the organization? Besides, how could they "remember the soldiers and sailors of the Republic," except by voting for the regular candidate even though it had been Beelzebub himself? These conundrums come home to the bosom of every man who esteems his party above his country. Here in Oregon the Republicans who rebelled against an iniquity incomparably greater than that alleged against Poland have been denounced from the platform and stigmatized in newspapers as traitors to Republican principles. They stood out against a piece of political villainy beside which Poland's Press Gag Law seems almost trivial, viewing the two in their possible ultimate effects. They have been read out of the party. Several postmasters have been known to disapprove in the severest terms of the course of the Independent press in Oregon. But the newspapers still live and their heretical doctrine is being preached in every township where campaigns are in progress to-day. We are curious to know what the party organs in Oregon think of the Vermont bolt? Perhaps they can point the moral to Poland's defeat.

TO BE EXPLAINED.

Mr. Beecher's statement is before our readers. It is a document of considerable importance, full of interest, strong in some points, weak in others, and is evidently intended as the fullest, most complete answer possible to Tilton's charges. The general theory of the paper is novel. We believe the American people generally would have regarded the indictment by Theodore Tilton with no more consideration than they gave to the Woodhull's story, had it not been that Mr. Beecher's own letters seemed to give color to the accusation. Very many people argued that Mr. Beecher could not have written the words in which he so vividly depicts the grief and anguish of a penitent spirit unless he had been guilty of a heinous crime against Tilton. We believe it is not putting the case too strongly when we say that Mr. Beecher's own handwriting was the weightiest evidence against him, not excepting the allegation of Francis D. Moulton, that the great preacher had confessed his guilt to him.

To these letters a good portion of Mr. Beecher's defense is devoted. He has undertaken to explain them upon a hypothesis which, while it is by no means impossible nor yet improbable, is still altogether startling in its novelty. He boldly affirms that Theodore Tilton has for years been using or attempting to use him (Beecher) in again raising himself to the eminent station from which, through his own folly, he once fell. Mr. Francis D. Moulton is one of the most important witnesses in the case. He will find just here something which affects him as a man of honor quite as seriously as the original charge can affect Mr. Beecher. People will want to know how and why Moulton came to be the recipient of several thousand dollars given by Beecher to Tilton. Beecher has said he paid and Moulton, in his complete statement acknowledges having received it. If any other evidence were needed, it can be said that the books of Woodruff & Robinson (of which firm Moulton is a partner) show that he received sums of money at different times from Beecher. Moulton says, also, that this money went to support the Golden Age in its struggle for existence and to relieve Tilton's personal necessities. As yet, Moulton has offered no explanation of this singular transaction. It may be that he can do so. If he cannot he falls, and Beecher stands. Innocent men have paid blackmail before this.

There is one other point in Mr. Beecher's statement which seems to call for some explanation from Moulton. Some time in 1873 Beecher's eyes seem to have opened to the utter folly of attempting to keep the foul scandal from the world by fair words and hollow truces. On the first day of June he addressed to Moulton a note informing him that he (Beecher) should "write a statement that will bear the light of the judgment day." The letter clearly shows great mental agony—such grievous distress as would beset any sensitive man who was about to confide to the world that which for years he had kept locked within his own breast. In his answer dated Sunday, June 1, 1873, Moulton chides Beecher for the sombre hue of his letter, declares that if he had listened to him alone his hands would have dropped helpless long ago, protests against Mr. Beecher's resolve, tells him that if he will look the scandal "square in the eyes it will cower and slink away again," and adds the remarkable assurance: "You can stand if the whole case were published to-morrow." What did Moulton mean by this? Did he mean that Beecher was strong in the strength of the man who hath his quarrel just?

This letter of Moulton's clearly recognizes in Mr. Beecher the melancholy in which (as Beecher has it) his extraordinary contrition originated. Much has been said concerning this trait in Beecher. There is an impression that he seeks to build a defense on the plea of emotional insanity. His own words are: "I inherit a tendency to sadness, the remains in me of positive hypocondria in my father and grandfather," etc. Moulton says: "You know I have never been in sympathy with, but that I utterly abhor the unmanly mood out of which your letter of this morning came. This mood is a reservoir of mildew." It is a fashion among some people to speak derisively of "Beecher's emotional insanity." There is no justification for this. Beecher speaks with apparent honesty of this characteristic, which is by no means an unusual one.

Yet another point suggested by the publication of the Moulton-Beecher correspondence: throughout all his letters Moulton addresses Beecher in such terms of affection as are used only by the nearest and dearest of friends. He informs the world that he is a heathen, while his letters abound in deeply religious sentiment and frequent invocations of Divine blessing upon Beecher. And yet there seems to have been no particular bond of genuine love between these men. Moulton says he was the repository of a hideous secret; that Beecher had confessed to him a crime which would have caused—any honorable gentleman to shrink from him in horror and disgust, we were going to say—yet he speaks lovingly of him and to him, just as if he were free from the taint of any crime, and says fervently: "May God bless you. I know he will protect you." This is certainly a heathenish knowledge of God. It presents a deity who holds the vilest libertine under the shadow of his wing. Perhaps when Mr. Moulton fulfills his threat of vengeance on Beecher he will explain these and many other points to which we have not alluded in this article. It is worth our while to wait with patience the end of this tragic farce.

At East Saginaw (Mich.) July 14th, "Goldsmith Maid" trotted a mile in 2:16. At Buffalo, a few days after, she trotted a mile in 2:15. At Rochester, August 12th, she made a mile in 2:14¾, in a race with "American Girl" and "Judge Fullerton." The Buffalo people (and a good many others, for that matter) said that the timers had more to do with the Rochester performance than had the Maid. It is said there is a bitter rivalry between the two cities in the matter of racing. But the wonderful little mare has set at rest all doubts as to her right to the title, "Queen of the Trotting Course." At Mystic Park, Boston, on Wednesday, she accomplished the marvelous feat of trotting a mile to harness in 2.14. Of course there can be no dispute now. Sedate Boston has said it, and she can maintain it by mathematical demonstration. Now what is Bonner going to do about it?

We have had occasion to remark before that the ways of the Plymouth Church Investigating Committee were peculiar. In the reports of its proceedings one is continually confronted with their blunders. Here is an instance in Gen. Tracy's examination of Bessie Turner, Tilton's adopted daughter: "Will you tell us whether Mr. and Mrs. Tilton lived happily or otherwise when you first went with them? How long had you been with them, when you first noticed infelicities in their life? What was his conduct with Mrs. Stanton? When strangers were there how was his conduct? Is there anything further that you remember about their domestic affairs?" All this, we must presume, goes to establish the innocence of Mr. Beecher.

The Solicitor of the Treasury, in his recommendation on the reorganization of the secret service system, takes cognizance of a weakness of poor human nature, which, if properly guarded against, must swell the revenues of the Government. He proposes that the agents of the service shall be frequently transferred from one district to another. He thinks this plan will diminish the danger to agents of too long residence in one locality, and of "the insidious influences which are likely to result from the too intimate acquaintance of local thieves." Why, are there any "local thieves" in the Customs service?

The poor laborers of the District of Columbia who aided Mr. Shepherd in "improving the sanitary condition of Washington" and in making it "the handsomest city on the continent" (see report of Investigating Committee) are to be paid off—at last. There are about two thousand of them and they will receive about $150,000. Murtagh and Brother Harlan got their little thousands (for advertising and all that sort of thing) a good many months ago. But this ought not to raise a prejudice against them in the bosom of any fair-minded man.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE CITY OF PEKING.—The monster steamship City of Peking, Capt. Williams, belonging to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and intended for the trade between San Francisco, Jeddo and Yokohama, yesterday made her trial trip to test her engines outside of Sandy Hook. Twelve hundred invitations had been issued, and at 7 o'clock yesterday morning the dock foot of Canal street was crowded with the guests who were conveyed to the City of Peking, which lay in the stream, by means of steam tugs. This steamer is the second largest vessel in the world, being next to the Great Eastern in the point of size, she drawing twenty-four feet of water when fully laden. The trip was in every way a perfect success. The average speed made, with eight out of ten boilers and thirty-eight pounds of steam, was from forty-eight to fifty-four revolutions per minute and fourteen and a half knots per hour. The City of Peking returned and anchored in the stream opposite her dock at 6 o'clock, and the guests were taken ashore by the tugs.—N. Y. Herald, Aug. 23.

A SOLDIER RUNNING A MUCK.—Camp Brown, Wyo. Ter., Aug. 17.—As Company L, Third Cavalry, was proceeding to Camp Brown, Wyo. Ter., to relieve Company B, Second Cavalry, a most atrocious crime was committed by a member of the former company. An escort of four men and a Corporal were at the North Fork of the Popoagie, going toward Brown, when, without any warning, one of the escort, named Green, rode up to one Mahoney, and presenting his pistol, shot him through the lungs. He then immediately turned upon the others and commenced an indiscriminate fire, shooting one man through the bowels, and another through the side. As Ryan fell the remaining uninjured man ran to help him get his feet from the stirrups; consequently Green had plenty of time to get two of the horses and take to the bluffs. An ambulance coming up soon after, took the wounded to Camp Brown; but the man Mahoney died before reaching the post. Parties were at once sent in pursuit, and at last accounts were close on the trail of the murderer.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

"Be careful how you drink, or you'll wash the color from your cheeks?" said a gentleman at a fashionable party, as he handed a glass of water to a lady. "There is no danger of you ever taking water enough to remove the color from your face," was the good natured retort.

A few days ago Mr. E. Wilson, a drayman of Victoria, was bitten upon the hand by a hog. He thought nothing of the injury at the time; but in a few days the hand and arm were swollen to an immense size and the patient was pronounced seriously ill.

Last Sunday the steamer Otter brought down $150,000 in gold dust from Fort Wrangell and the northwest coast.

VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY.—In our issue of Wednesday, we [illegible] of the body of an unknown man [illegible] in the Columbia river near White Salmon; and also stated that Sheriff [illegible], of [illegible] county, had gone to hold an inquest on the remains. From that gentleman we are in receipt of the following: Having [illegible] notice on [illegible] Aug. [illegible], 1874, [illegible] the body of a [illegible] three miles below the mouth of Big White Salmon, I proceeded to the place on Monday, and on Tuesday morning found the body. I summoned a jury, held an inquest, and buried the body. The body when found had on a pair of striped woolen pants, channel-nailed number nine boot on the left foot, with a cotton sock. Boot very little worn. The boot and [illegible] of pants I now have in my possession. No [illegible] or anything found by which to [illegible] and the body so badly decayed that we [illegible] form no idea of his age or nationality. On Wednesday, Aug. 12th, G. W. Palmer, who lives two miles above White Salmon, was going up the river near his place, when he saw the body of a man floating down. He requested a boy who was with him to [illegible] and they would tow the body ashore; but the boy refused, having no rope. The wind was blowing hard at the time, so he went down the river and got Amos Underwood, who was on the bank, to go out and help tow the body in. But on returning they [illegible] remains, as the wind was blowing very hard, and the water was too rough for their [illegible] boats. Palmer says the man had long hair behind, and was somewhat bald. His hair was light [illegible] could not identify the [illegible] but to the best of his knowledge [illegible] opinion that the body was the [illegible] when found was about one and a half [illegible] from the water, partially [illegible] One thumb was reported gone, but was [illegible] to be perfect. The river has fallen [illegible] foot during the past [illegible] rendered the following verdict:

We, the undersigned [illegible] to inquire into the cause of the death of a [illegible] found lying on the bank of the Columbia river, three miles below Big White Salmon, in Skamania county, W. T., [illegible] that he came to his death [illegible] by some person or persons unknown to us.

GONE EAST.—Rev. T. L. [illegible] First Unitarian Church of P[illegible] departure last evening for the [illegible] promising his p[illegible] suddenly and [illegible] goes East for the [illegible] Annual Convention of the [illegible] which will convene at [illegible] absent from the State [illegible] ing the absence of Mr. [illegible] will be temporarily filled by a [illegible] San Francisco. While [illegible] he will be in Boston, New York, Chicago and [illegible] In the interests of education [illegible] which he is closely allied, Mr. [illegible] a number of the leading [illegible] cities. He will represent, in the C[illegible] the interests of the Church to which he [illegible] for the Pacific Coast. On the 17th [illegible] Eliot will address the [illegible] at San [illegible]. He hopes to return [illegible] by a missionary of the Liberal Ch[illegible] to labor in Oregon and Washington. A pleasant, profitable visit, and a [illegible] return, is the sincere wish of a score of warm friends.

A YOUNG OREGONIAN.—From the Annual Circular of Long Island College Hospital, of Brooklyn, N. Y., we learn that Geo. H. Atkinson, M. D., son of the well known clergyman of that name in our city, a graduate of the institution, now occupies the position of Assistant to the Chair of Practice and Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy of the [illegible]. He is also one of the Adjunct Physicians, a place which gives him superior facilities for acquiring large experience in the practice of his chosen profession. The Long Island College Hospital is also a Medical School of the first grade, giving a perfect combination of theory and practice, and our young friend Dr. A. has evidently improved the opportunities offered, and we are glad to state is likely to rise to prominence in his profession. He also has a regular office in Brooklyn and a growing practice. His ability and success reflects credit upon Oregon, of which he is a native, having been born in Oregon City in September, 1849.

LECTURES.—As previously announced, Rev. A. H. Bradford, who is temporarily occupying the pulpit of the First Congregational Church, will deliver two lectures prior to his departure for the E[illegible]. He will give the first lecture of the course at the Congregational Church on Wednesday evening, September 9th. Lecture will commence at 8 o'clock. Mr. Bradford's subject will be "One of England's Heroes." It will be an intellectual treat which should not be suffered to pass by unimproved.

AN EPISCOPAL VISIT.—During the recent trip of the Rev. A. M. A. Blanchet, Bishop of Nesqualy, to the Indian Mission at Fort Colville, he traveled nearly a thousand miles by water and land. Bishop Blanchet confirmed 870 Indians at the Colville Agency, and 35 whites and Indians at Fort Colville. Previous to the arrival of His Grace, Father Tosi, S. J., confirmed 50 Indians, whose homes were far in the interior, and who could not await the Bishop's arrival.

WHO IS IT?—An exchange published in the town of Caldwell, Noble county, Ohio, has the following: "An Oregon preacher recently said in his sermon, that 'when the disciples came unto the tomb of Jesus, they found the door guarded by three Roman angels, with improved Springfield rifles and fixed bayonets.'" We should be extremely gratified to hear from the divine who could utter such sentiments as those above.

ANOTHER.—City Treasurer Lewis did not visit San Francisco so much on business as he represented. It was an affair that many do not care to mention prior to the fulfillment, which took him to the Golden City. The event was to have transpired on Wednesday evening according to rumors afloat among his numerous friends here. We [illegible] to see the happy pair next week.

PEACHES.—Mr. A. W. Prettyman, who makes frequent calls with excellent samples of what he can produce at the Railroad Nursery, laid on our table yesterday several very fine peaches, one of which measured ten inches. They were the best we have tasted this season and we will not object to Mr. Prettyman's visits at any time, provided he brings more samples.

CITY.

VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY.—In our issue of Wednesday we made mention of the body of an unknown man found floating in the Columbia river near White Salmon, and also stated that Sheriff McDonald, of Skamania county, had gone to hold an inquest over the remains. From that gentleman we are in receipt of the following: "Having received official notice on Sunday, Aug 30th, 1874, that the body of a man had been discovered about three miles below the mouth of Big White Salmon, I proceeded to the place on Monday, and on Tuesday morning found the body. I summoned a jury, held an inquest and buried the body. The body when found had on a pair of striped woolen pants, channel nailed number nine boot on the left foot, with a cotton sock. Boot very little worn. The boot and piece of pants I now have in my possession. No papers or anything found by which to identify him, and the body so badly decayed that we could form no idea of his age or nationality. On Wednesday, Aug 12th, G W Palmer, who lives two miles above White Salmon, was going up the river near his place, when he saw the body of a man floating down. He requested a boy who was with him to assist, and they would tow the body ashore, but the boy refused, having no rope. The wind was blowing hard at the time, so he went down the river and got Amos Underwood, who was on the bank, to go out and help tow the body in. But on returning they could not find the remains, as the wind was blowing very hard and the water was too rough for their small boats. Palmer says the man he saw had long hair behind and was somewhat bald. His hair was light colored. At the inquest he could not identify the remains as the same, but to the best of his knowledge he was of the opinion that the body was the same. The body when found was about one and a half feet from the water, partially covered with sand. One thumb was reported gone, but was found to be perfect. The water has fallen about one foot during the past three weeks. The jury rendered the following verdict:

"We, the undersigned, jurors summoned to inquire into the cause of the death of a man found lying on the bank of the Columbia river, three miles below Big White Salmon, in Skamania county, W T, return a verdict that he came to his death by having his throat cut by some person or persons unknown to us.

AMOS UNDERWOOD, Foreman.

Charles Craver, S H Baker, J S Bailey, N W Kelley, C Wilkinson."

COURT MARTIAL.—Pursuant to adjournment the Court Martial which convened some weeks ago to investigate the alleged defalcation of government funds by Maj Eggleston, U S Paymaster, met yesterday morning at the office of the Headquarters of the Department of the Columbia. The following officers who were detailed to perform Court Martial duty, were present at the meeting of the Board: Col Alfred Sully, 21st Infantry; Lieut-Col Frank Wheaton, Major Elisha J Bailey, Surgeon; Maj R H Alexander, Surgeon; Maj James P Canby, Paymaster; Maj R N Batchelder, Quartermaster; Maj John Green, 1st Cavalry; Maj Edwin C Mason, 21st Infantry; Capt E V Sumner, 1st Cavalry; Capt Marcus P Miller, 4th Artillery; Capt Frank G Smith, 4th Artillery. Maj H Clay Wood, A A General, acted as Judge Advocate for the Court. On the convening of the Court, the defendant, Major Eggleston, stated that he had no counsel, but would conduct the defense himself. The Court met at 11 o'clock, A M, and adjourned at 1 o'clock, P M. The witnesses examined yesterday were General Nelson H Davis, Major J H Eaton, Major W A Rucker and Captain E V Sumner. The evidence of the last mentioned officer related merely to the [illegible] writing of the accused, that of the [illegible] bearing upon the condition of Major Eggleston's accounts in June last. The Court adjourned until this morning at 10:30 o'clock. [illegible] will probably last a week. [illegible] Wood conducted the examination.

[illegible].—Rev T L Eliot, pastor of the Unitarian Church of Portland, took his departure last evening for the East. The call for his presence elsewhere was quite sudden and unexpectedly made. Mr Eliot goes for the purpose of attending the [illegible] Convention of the Unitarian Church, which will convene at Saratoga. He will be absent from the State about six weeks. During the absence of Mr. Eliot his pulpit here will be temporarily filled by a gentleman from San Francisco. While East he will be in Boston, New York, Chicago and St Louis, in the interest of educational matters with which he is identified. Mr Eliot will visit a number of the leading schools of those large cities. He will represent, in the Convocation, the interests of the Church to which he belongs for the Pacific Coast. On the 17th inst Mr Eliot will address the Missionary Meeting at Saratoga. He hopes to return accompanied by a missionary of the Liberal Christian cause to labor in Oregon and Washington. A pleasant, profitable visit, and a safe, speedy return, is the sincere wish of a score of warm friends.

A YOUNG OREGONIAN.—From the Annual Circular of Long Island College Hospital of Brooklyn, N Y, we learn that Geo H Atkinson, M D, son of the well known clergyman of that name in our city, a graduate of that institution, now occupies the position of Assistant to the Chair of Practice and Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy of the same. He is also one of the Adjunct Physicians, a place which gives him superior facilities for acquiring large experience in the practice of his chosen profession. The Long Island College Hospital is also a Medical School of the first grade, giving a perfect combination of theory and practice, and our young friend Dr A has evidently improved the opportunities offered, and we are glad to state is likely to rise to prominence in his profession. He also has a regular office in Brooklyn and a growing practice. His ability and success reflects credit upon Oregon, of which he is a native, having been born in Oregon City in September 1849.

LECTURES.—As previously announced, Rev A H Bradford, who is temporarily occupying the pulpit of the First Congregational Church, will deliver two lectures prior to his departure for the East. He will give the first lecture of the course at the Congregational Church on Wednesday evening, September 9th. Lecture will commence at 8 o'clock. Mr Bradford's subject will be "One of England's Heroes." It will be an intellectual treat which should not be suffered to pass by unimproved.

AN EPISCOPAL VISIT.—During the recent trip of the Rev. A. M. A. Blanchet, Bishop of Nesqualy, to the Indian Mission at Fort Colville, he traveled nearly a thousand miles by water and land. Bishop Blanchet confirmed 370 Indians at the Colville Agency and 35 whites and Indians at Fort Colville. Previous to the arrival of His Grace, Father Tosi, S J, confirmed 60 Indians whose homes were far in the hills, and who could not await the Bishop's arrival.

WHO IS IT?—An exchange published in the town of Caldwell, Noble county, Ohio, has the following: "An Oregon preacher recently said in his sermon that when the disciples came unto the tomb of Jesus, they found the door guarded by Roman angels with improved Springfield rifles and fixed bayonets." We should be extremely gratified to learn from the divine who could utter such sentiments as those above.

ANOTHER.—City Treasurer Lewis did not visit San Francisco so much on business as he [illegible]. It was an affair that many do not [illegible] which [illegible] to the Golden City. The event was to have transpired on Wednesday evening, according to rumors afloat among [illegible] here. We shall expect to see the happy pair next week.

PEACHES.—Mr A W Prettyman, who makes frequent calls with excellent samples of what he can produce at the Railroad Nursery, laid on our table yesterday several very fine peaches, one of which measured ten inches. They were the best we have tasted this season, and we will not object to Mr Prettyman's visits at any time, provided he brings more samples.

At the sociable held at the Methodist church Wednesday evening a silver goblet was presented to the retiring pastor, Rev G W Izer, by the Saturday class. Though the presentation was a surprise Mr Izer responded in a few happy and well chosen remarks.

PERSONAL.

Rev Wm McPheeters, who during the past conference year has assumed the pastorate of the M E Church of Salem, left on the steamer for California, to which field of labor he was transferred by the last Conference.

Judge J F Simmons, of Mississippi, was a passenger on the steamer. He expresses himself highly pleased with Oregon and expects to return at an early day with a number of Mississippians. On his return he will locate in Albany.

The Rev G W Izer, who for more than three years past has ably and acceptably filled the pulpit of the Taylor Street M E Church, having been transferred by Bishop Merrill to Central New York, took his departure last evening for his new and extended field of labor. He is accompanied by his estimable wife.

Hon J S Smith, whose general health has been precarious for several years past, has temporarily broken up housekeeping, and with his esteemed wife will visit, during the coming winter, a more mild and genial climate. Mr Smith's health is much improved within the past year, but is too delicate to permit him to engage in regular business.

Among the passengers on the out going steamer is Mr Isaac Bewley, formerly of Salem, but at present from Tillamook, who goes on a visit to his old home in Indiana. Mr Bewley is one of Oregon's oldest living pioneers, having emigrated hither prior to 1847. This is the first time for twenty seven years that he has revisited the scenes of his childhood. He will be absent about two months.

Mr Beck, of Beck & Waldman, has returned from his Eastern trip. The firm are busy opening a score of cases, and in a few days we shall be better able to say something of Mr Beck's purchases of clothing, etc.

In another column appears the fall announcement of Bradley, Marsh & Co, who have just laid in an extensive stock of dry goods, groceries, farmers' supplies, etc. The firm now occupy the entire Raleigh building, and have fitted up the second and third floors and the basement for the reception of the new arrivals. The firm have been with us scarcely a year, and to day they present one of the finest establishments north of San Francisco. They have pluck, and show it by using printer's ink lavishly. We have been through the various apartments and were astonished at the immense display made. They certainly sell goods exceedingly low, as the crowds which flock into their store certainly give us assurance. At least a dozen clerks are employed by the firm who understand the wants of the numerous patrons. We would advise the ladies to call and see the new stock of dry goods, and our Granger friends to look at the goods selected especially for their use and consumption. The success of Bradley, Marsh & Co is truly remarkable. Call on them.

PASSENGERS.—At 6 o'clock last evening the steamer John L Stephens sailed hence for San Francisco. She carried away the following passengers: Mrs Lasier and 2 children, Alfred Wilkie, J F Simmons, H J Lisk, S Harris, R S Hill, F G Drake, G N I Emmons, N Meyer, Rev Wm McPheeters, W P Morgan, C Pragg, H E Simmons, Rev L Weiner and wife, N H Seligman, Gen Nelson H Davis, Mrs L White, Rev Geo W Izer and wife, Mrs I A Johnson and infant, Miss L A Forsyth, J Harris, D G Gilbert and wife, N Wolf, Miss Ada Williams, S Kuhn, Mrs D W Wakefield and daughter, M Kline, P E Brigham, Miss Phelan, N N Carpenter, Mrs H L Prange, I B Stockton and son, Martin Schultz and wife, Fred Congdon, Rev T L Eliot, A P Dennison, S A Saxe, Mrs J Sneeter, Mrs Mary A Ramp, Miss L S Grant, Mrs Jno LaChapelle and child, J G Campbell, L B Frazer, S Quint, I W Bewley, Preston Smith, N Wertheimer, Geo C Hall, N W Robertson and wife, Miss F M Boneo, Mrs J S Smith, Geo W Feller and wife, W N Williams and child, J S McMeen, R H Tapp, A E Spencer, Geo Redmond, Wells Fargo & Co's messenger and 20 in the steerage.

LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL.

SALEM, Sept 2, 1874.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Since the last clear up of the weather, the farmers have been putting in their best licks to reap and thresh the remaining harvest, and probably it will all have been secured before the next damp spell.

GETTING READY FOR THE HARVEST.

Everybody and their families are now busy preparing for the coming Legislature and State Fair.

The crop of candidates for clerkships is very promising, and quite a number have announced themselves as willing to sacrifice themselves for the honors and per diem, but they are all at sea as to the possible political complexion of the two Houses and the combinations that will be made. All of the political parties (so I am informed) hold the balance of power, and will compel one of the other parties to coalesce with them to form an organization and elect their own party men to the different offices, but time will tell, and many an aspiring ambition will receive a severe defeat and castles in the air will fall before the uncertainties of political preferment.

OFFICERS OF STATE PREPARING THEIR REPORTS.

Secretary Chadwick is busy renovating and preparing the different halls and committee-rooms for the next session, but with all the confusion that necessarily surrounds him he is as good natured and affable as ever, and greets all with smiles while he answers various questions and transacts the business brought before him.

F H Cann is now deep in facts and figures in making up the several reports of the land office, and his forthcoming report will surprise a great many as to the amount of business that is being transacted in that department.

The new State Treasurer and Printer are both here taking items as to how to "run the machine" when they will be called upon to take their places.

His Excellency, the Governor, is now busy preparing his message, which I am informed will be quite lengthy, and will contain several recommendations of vital interest to the welfare of the commonwealth.

CHANGE IN THE CHEMEKETA HOTEL.

The Chemeketa House, that has been under the control of the popular caterer, Mr Wesley Graves, has changed hands, Mr Graves withdrawing and Mr Smith, formerly of the Dalles, takes his place, and it is hoped that he will prove equal to the task.

A PLEASANT AFFAIR.

The event of the evening, and I might say of the week, was the marriage of Mr Frank Hodgkins of the Statesman editorial staff, to Miss Frankie Dunbar, of this city, which took place this evening at St Paul's Church (Episcopal), the officiating minister being Rev J H Babcock, pastor. The church was crowded by the elite of the city, and a large majority were ladies in full dress, which added greatly to the occasion. The groomsmen were Messrs A B Crossman and M L Chamberlin. The bridesmaids were Misses Linnie McCully and Mira Belt, two of the fairest of Salem's daughters. The bride and groom looked happy. After the ceremony, the happy couple, accompanied by invited guests, repaired to the residence of Capt Crandall, where a bountiful repast was prepared and enjoyed until a late hour. We wish Frank a long and happy life, which is due to every man who commits matrimony.

EDUCATIONAL.

Next week the different schools will resume, and all give promise of being well attended, especially Willamette University. The city of Salem will continue the free school system, and one good effect it will have, at least for a few hours of each day, is that the streets will be free of about as precious a crop of hoodlums as can be found in any city of the Union for its size. And blessings will be breathed by many a fervent heart for even so short a respite.

EUGENE ITEMS.

Our farmers made large purchases in machinery this year and unless wheat advances to 75 or 80 cents a great many will not get out of debt.

The harvesters are making good use of the hot weather for the last few days. It is estimated that it will take three weeks yet to save all the grain in this county.

The County Board of Equalization have been in session this week and done but very little business. The total assessable property in Lane county this year is $2,800,000, about $300,000 in excess of last year. The increase has been made on land principally.

Wheat buyers are offering but 55 cents for wheat up to the present time. That price will not pay the farmers any profit for raising wheat, and from reliable reports from all parts of the county we are informed the farmers will not sell at that price. Many will be compelled to sell to meet demands, even at 55 cents.

Help Nature to Rally.

After an attack of fever or other acute disease has passed off and nature is endeavoring to rally, the debilitated system help the effort with the standard vegetable tonic of the age, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Nothing known to the physician or the pharmacopolist expedites convalescence like this vitalizing alterative. Persons who have been prostrated by long continued ailments recover their lost flesh, strength and cheerfulness in less than half the time that would be required to recuperate without it. It is the most genial as well as the most harmless of medicated stimulants, and as a remedy for (as well as a preventive of) dyspepsia, bilious attacks, constipation, nervous diseases, &c, has no equal in the world. When all other tonics have failed this effects a cure.

HOW MANY LITTLE SUFFERERS are wasting away from the effects of Cholera Infantum or summer complaint? And yet a remedy sure, prompt and thorough, readily administered, and entirely safe, with reputation established by its merit and maintained over the whole country for a series of years, as a standard curative for Cramps, Diarrhea, Cholera Morbus and all Diseases of the Bowels, can be readily obtained in Dr Jayne's Carminative Balsam. Why not give it a trial?

FRIDAY MORNING SEPT. 4, 1874

A WOODLAND STUDY

Through pleasant path and flowery ways
Through leafy woodland colonnades,
Where e en at noon the sun s keen gaze
Could scarcely reach we two had stray d
And left behind the glare and strife—
The din and babel of existence
Save us no trace of social life
In that enchanting sylvan distance

And there beneath a giant tree
The remnant of some ancient race
Whose gnarled roots your throne might be
We made awhile our resting place
Here I culled moss and fern and flower
There carpet soft as velvet spread
Forget you I ove that happy hour?
Would you recall the words you said

The throstle pour d his liquid lay
The vagrant bee pass d tuneful by
And there along its pebbly way
The gleaming brooklet murmur'd nigh
I heeded not the throstle's tones
Nor saw the brooklet s silver shine
I held your hand your heart my own
I only knew that you were mine

I cared not else to know for while
We rested in that woodland place
My sun my love was in your smile
And heaven itself within your face
So what for me was bloom or flower
Or arching branches over head?
Can I forget that happy hour?
Do you regret the words you said?

THE MUTUAL FRIEND

HOW MOULTON SNEAKED OUT OF A BET

From the Brooklyn Eagle Aug 27

Whether Mr Tilton would have been a better man than Mr Beecher if he had been in his place is a riddle yet but that Mr Moulton is a better friend is undoubted. This story, that has been told over champagne in the Old Men s Christian Association Club often but has never run to and fro in the streets will now that it is let loose prove how much of a better Mr. Moulton is.

As all the good stories begin so does this It came to pass one fine morning just before the North Carolina Presidential election in 1872 that Mr Southwick, of the firm of Sackson Schultz & Southwick as he was walking down Remson street toward the Wall street ferry met Mr Moulton and Mr Franklin Woodruff at the front stoop of our mutual friend Moulton with his usual [illegible] said

"Well Southwick how is North Carolina going?

Going for Grant said Southwick

I ll bet she will go for Greeley," said Moulton I ll bet $100 on every State in the Union for Greeley

And I'll hold the stakes said Franklin Woodruff

You can have as many bets as you want just like that. I ll give you $100 to get another bet of the same kind said Mr Moulton and we will arrange matters at 12 o clock

All right, said Southwick, and he passed along and stopped Mr Kent on Montague terrace. He told Mr Kent of his bet, and the latter indicated a wish to take four more bets just like it Mr Southwick straightway went round the corner again to Moulton s, and told him he would bet $500 on each State going for Grant

The bet was accepted.

At 12 o clock that day Mr Moulton called on Mr Kent, and offered $100 to have the refusal of the bet for a few hours. Obtaining the refusal, Mr Moulton in company with Mr Tilton, [illegible] the Republican head quarters, hawked the bet about, but could get no one to take it Returning soon afterward Moulton returned to Mr Kent told him he had been so busy, and was so exasperatingly pressed for time, as he was going to Naragansett Pier that evening that he had no time to gather the money and put it up, but, said Moulton it is a bet and on my honor it shall be As soon as I come back I ll put the money up Mr Kent relying on the honor of an alleged gentleman, [illegible] and Mr Moulton left for Naragansett Pier to spend the week with his family In the interval of a week which Mr Moulton [illegible] at Naragansett the political complexion of North Carolina had changed The news [illegible] were forecasting results unfavorable [illegible] and those who thought the chances [illegible] were good a week before were [illegible] When Moulton returned, he went to Mr. Kent and said

I went to Naragansett Pier to enjoy myself I have been miserable. I received a letter from Woodruff soon after I arrived, and he threatened to dissolve my [illegible] ship if I persisted in carrying the bet my wife spied the letter and was alarmed she made me promise to take none of the money if I won I now want you to let [illegible]

Mr Kent replied that it was a fair bet and if he was [illegible] he ought to be willing to give some token. The result was that Mr Kent made the proposition

Mr Moulton was to give a check for $1 000 to the Grant Club of Kings county and the bet was then to be declared off

To this proposal Mr Moulton said It is very liberal, and I am truly grateful I am disposed to be [illegible] in the matter, and to do even better than [illegible] to me

Mr Kent thought Mr. [illegible] meant to be just in his [illegible] in his justice and said Well I leave you to do whatever your sense of honor prompts

From that day to this no $1,000 check has been seen from Frank Moulton and no apology or explanation has been rendered.

This is a illustration of our mutual friend s sense of honor and there are many more instances which can be gathered from conversation with the members of the Produce Exchange

MOULTON AND THE PRODUCE EXCHANGE

Mr Moulton as a member of the firm of Woodruff & Robinson has for many years been a daily visitor at the Produce Exchange New York A reporter wishing to learn the estimation with which Mr Moulton s business friends hold him in the light of the damaging allegations made by Mr Beecher in his statement, visited that temple of Ceres From conversation with a large number of members the reporter found out that Mr Moulton s course in the present trouble was almost universally condemned One prominent member said that no such man as Moulton could ever transact business on that floor again and that if Moulton should endeavor to do so at present he would be summarily rushed from the room

They wanted no such men there Another member suggested that Mr Beecher take as his first text after the vacation A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell in with Tilton and Moulton who stripped him of his raiment and wounded him and departed

From all appearances it seemed that unpleasant personal demonstrations would take place if Mr Moulton were to attempt to transact business during the present height of excitement

FIGHTING POISON WITH POISON —As an illustration of the power of one poison to counteract another in the human system a recent case in this city furnishes a highly important and interesting instance We give the statement as related to us by Dr Harris, who was called to the relief of a would be suicide and who administered the successful antidote The person had taken between 40 and 50 grains of opium and was fast dying He could no longer swallow his extremities were cold and had turned black while his respirations only numbered between six and seven to the minute This last of itself seemed to indicate that all hope was gone as anything less than eight respirations to a minute had heretofore been known as a sure precursor of death As a last resort the doctor determined to try heroic treatment and he accordingly with a hypodermic syringe injected two thirds of a grain of nux vomica dissolved in a teaspoonful of water beneath the skin over the heart stomach spine and on each arm above the elbow and on the calf of each leg The quantity of nux vomica would have been the death of any well man in existence but in antagonism to the opium it was in this seemingly hopeless case an agent of life and in fifteen minutes the man was sitting up in bed conscious and rapidly recovering —From the South Bend (Ind) Tribune

Wheat in Liverpool by mail advices from San Francisco 10s 1d@10s 4d for average Calif rnia and 10s 5d@11s 6d for club

The very quiet state so often noticed during the past few months in local financial circles still continues Collecting has been carried on during the past two or three days and is reported to be rather easier than last month though the aggregate of money in circulation is not large There is much capital here idly waiting a revival of trade which event seems slower in taking place than usual at this season of the year The banks as well as outside parties are in possession of very respectable sums which have been husbanded for some time in the expectation that a very strong demand would arise when the crops were to be moved And now owing to the sluggishness of the grain trade and accession of money from outside the State, our supplies of available funds are abundant—in excess of present requirements and quite sufficient to meet any demand likely to arise

English Wheat Markets

Beerbohm s London Trade List of August 1 that is at hand but contains few items which have not been anticipated by other sources of news We find however the following definite description of the wheat crop in the Black Sea District. Advices received from that section of Russia prior to the date given were rather unfavorable the yield of Wheat being a [illegible] less than the average. The [illegible] accounts spoken of in the List may partly account for the heavy decline the English market has suffered since August 1st

Advices from the south of Russia state that the wheat crop in the Odessa and Bessarabian districts, and in the Government of Cherson as far as Nicopol [illegible] an excellent result both as regards quantity and quality while in Podolia although the quality is fine the yield will probably be inferior to that of last year A recent telegraphic advice from Taganrog states that the crop of wheat promised a splendid result prices were merely nominal

The imports of wheat into the United Kingdom during the week ending August 5th were more liberal than those of the preceding week namely 1 039 035 cwts against 865 983 cwts The deliveries of home grown wheat were small namely 19,703 qrs in the corresponding week in 1873 they amounted to 74,577 qrs The average price for English wheat for the week ending August 1st was 59s 3d against 59s 9d in the corresponding week last year. The number of cargoes of wheat on passage was 201 computed to carry 741 720 qrs against 867 000 qrs ft y 204 vessels at the same period last year

The following table shows the comparative prices in the Liverpool market during the month of July and August, in 1873 and 1874 :

This shows a fall of 1s 9d or 42 cents since July 1st.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—As above intimated some little indications of a recovery from the inactive condition of the market in this cereal have manifested themselves in the past two or three days but as yet the transactions have been limited to comparatively small lots mostly purchased in the interior on terms equivalent to about $2 50 per cental delivered here in sacks By our next review we expect to have some considerable activity in this department of trade to report but aside from the small movements referred to nothing has transpired during the past week

EGGS—Receipts have been better and with a lessened demand for shipping prices have become weak at 25c per doz

FLOUR—There are not very large stocks on hand here but some additions have been made during the week now specially under review and prices are rather weaker though choice extras are still held at a higher figure than in San Francisco Although wheat is so low quotations for flour are still given at $5 50 ℔ bbl for standard extras, $4 75@$5 for country brands and $4 for superfine.

GREEN APPLES—The market is tolerably well supplied with quotations ranging from 37½c to 50c ℔ bushel

HIDES—The receipts of hides and pelts continue, as usual quite free We quote prime dry hides at 15@16c ℔ ℔ green 7c culls 10@11c.

WOOL—There are no transactions worthy of note, although occasionally a lot finds its way to market. Quotations remain unchanged and range from [illegible] to 30c according to quality

OATS—The market is active with a fair demand for shipping purposes Prices are a little downward in their tendencies. Quotations are 45c ℔ bushel for good white and 40c for black

BARLEY—The local transactions are of a trivial character and the market is controlled by brewers. We quote best lots at $1 40@1 50 ℔ cental including sacks Feed lots are worth about $1 37½@1 40

FEED—The market is well supplied with the exception of chops. Prices are firmer There has been considerable demand for the Sound trade Quotations are Bran $11 chops and shorts $[illegible] middlings $30 ℔ ton

HAY—We note the receipt of several large lots which find sale at $10 ℔ ton for baled timothy $9@10 for loose $7 for wild

POTATOES—There is no lack in the supply or varieties Prices range from 35 to 40c ℔ bushel

ONIONS—The receipts have materially increased, and prices seem tending downward common lots being now quotable at $1@1 25 ℔ 100 lbs and choice $1 50

BACON—Hams and shoulders though not so plentiful as some time ago are yet obtainable but sides are very scarce and firm at quotations For good country cured we quote hams at 14@16c ℔ ℔ shoulders 7@10c sides 11½@12½c

LARD—The demand for a good article of fresh is fair at 14@16c ℔ ℔ in kegs or tins
